Kuju Wireless selects Exit Games Neutron 2.0 for powering the multiplayer versions of its top-selling mobile games

Hamburg, Germany, 14 February, 2005

Kuju Wireless, one of the leading European games developer and publisher, and Exit Games announce their cooperation to create mobile multiplayer versions of existing Kuju Wireless mobile games. Exit Games will provide Kuju Wireless with its Neutron development toolkit and services enabling multiplayer gaming, matchmaking, community, event billing and administrative services.

Kuju Wireless is internationally renowned for its large portfolio of high level branded titles for Console, PC and wireless platforms, where it made its mark with games like the EA-branded Fifa Soccer 2003 and the J2ME-Title Lotus Challenge.

"We are looking forward to transforming our Java games into stunning multiplayer experiences. The vast community features offered by the Exit Games Neutron solution will make the games even more appealing to connected gamers" says Kevin Holloway, Managing Director at Kuju Wireless.

"Kuju Wireless is a very valuable client for us, as the studio already realized multiplayer games for PC and consoles. Their games will convincingly demonstrate the new features of Exit Games Neutron 2.0" says Harald Behnke, CEO of Exit Games.

The new release 2.0 of the mobile multiplayer solution Exit Games Neutron is launched on the occasion of the 3GSM World Congress. It is the first multiplayer service based on the OMA (Open Mobile Alliance) Games Services standard co-developed by Exit Games. International industry leaders, such as Vodafone, T-Mobile or Sony Ericsson have already released games based on Exit Games Neutron.
