Bytedefenders develops mobile multiplayer games based on Exit Games Neutron 2.0

Berlin, Germany April 18th, 2005

The leading independent European games developer Bytedefenders announces its cooperation with middleware provider Exit Games to power new production of mobile multiplayer games created by Bytedefenders. As part of the agreement Exit Games will provide Bytedefenders with its Neutron development toolkit and services enabling multiplayer gaming, matchmaking, community, event billing and administrative functionalities.

Bytedefenders is internationally renowned for its successful games, such as Alphaman or Egypt Quest I and II which are all distributed by leading operators worldwide. The upcoming mobile multiplayer titles Catapults and Brick Challenge mark Bytedefenders' step into the promising mobile multiplayer market where they will combine the studio's development expertise with innovative gaming formats.

Exit Games is an internationally established mobile multiplayer service provider. Its core product Exit Games Neutron is the first multiplayer service based on the OMA (Open Mobile Alliance) games service standard, co-developed by Exit Games. International industry leaders, such as Vodafone, T-Mobile or Sony Ericsson have already released Games based on Exit Games Neutron.

"We are very happy to work with a partner who has already gathered a large experience with different gaming formats" comments Harald Behnke, CEO of Exit Games. "The combination of Bytedefenders creativity and the advanced multiplayer features of Exit Games Neutron 2.0 will provide the market with exciting and innovative games."

"Mobile multiplayer promises a new dimension of mobile gaming as users can play everywhere at anytime. We are happy to enter this innovative market with Exit Games and their Neutron solution which offers great multiplayer features and considerably simplifies the development process", adds Markus Glasmeier, Managing Director of Bytedefenders.
